Current Events

NEW YORK, June 24.—Today the big circus starts. Bit by any candidate and hear him gradually eliminate all the others, leaving himself alone surviving. That's as amusing as anything here.

MR. BRYAN shows his extraordinary rugged constitution now as he did years ago in St. Louis. He is up until two in the morning talking to the men from every corner of the land, and is up again at six, ready to see everybody.

WHEN ASKED how he stands it, his reply is, "Speed the Winter in Florida, and you can stand anything for the rest of the year. Go to that wonderful climate and get rid of twenty years."

Florida never had a better spokesman than she has in Bryan, her delegate-at-large, elected by a vote 100 per cent. greater than that of any man on his ticket.

EVERY DELEGATE probably regrets it, every candidate CERTAINLY regrets it—the convention seems to be degenerating into a religious fight. McAdoo attended services at St. George's Protestant Episcopal Church. Al Smith, his strongest rival for nomination, attended mass at St. Agnes' Roman Catholic Church. "Klan and Run" now overshadow the League of Nations, that had been the third issue in a convention that apparently thinks little about things that interest the average American.

SAM SMALL, Evangelist, tells a revival meeting in Brooklyn that Al Smith can never be nominated or elected. "Never as long as America is in the United States! And I am a regular, riparian, dignified, Democrat from the South, too."

He does not conceal his religious bias.

ON the other hand, at Patuxent, Long Island, a few miles away, while the Rev. Sam Small was denouncing Al Smith, twenty to thirty thousand members of the diocese of Brooklyn and Long Island held their annual gatherings.

For every vote against Al Smith in Sam Small's revival there were ten votes for Smith in that gathering of the Holy Name Society.

THE CHARGE that he is too friendly to the "Invisible Empire" of the Ku Klux Klan is answered indignantly by McAdoo with the statement that he is really fighting the "Invisible Government of Wall Street."

The Ku Klux Klan calls itself as "Invisible Empire," but every body knows it doesn't govern the United States—no yet.

The "Invisible Government of Finance" is real, and if its brand were visible, those that faithfully serve it in the Democratic convention would be afraid to take their shirts off.

THE LEADERS of the Ku Klux Klan declare that they will bitterly fight any plank "mentioning the Ku Klux Klan by name." Why? Do not the Klansmen and others that direct the Klan know the value of being attacked and advertised?

ONE THING is certain—and it's important, for it will settle the coming election. If Al Smith is beaten, as he probably will be, will that make impossible the election of any other Democrat. Millions of Catholics will believe that Al Smith was defeated because he was a Catholic, and whether that's so or not they will vote for Coolidge, by way of saying to the Democratic party: "I'm a Catholic, no matter what his religion, no matter what his religion or LACK of religion."

The first victim of this year's initial hot wave was marked up today, when Norton E. Stanley, fifty-eight, of No. 251 Spruce street, Chelsea, collapsed in Revere. He was dead when aid reached him.

Stanley was working on the farm of Joseph Shurtzoff when he succumbed to the heat, which, at 1 o'clock today, had boiled up to the 88 degree mark on the thermometer. Today's session of the torrid wave was predicted by the new weather man—Mr. Loveland—at the bottom, thus far, he declared that today's mercury would mount higher than on either yesterday or Sunday.

ALTHOUGH this first hot wave was heralded long in advance, it found Boston beaches not only under-equipped, but inadequately guarded.

BEAUTY SUING SHAW TRIED TO END LIFE

MADLINE DEVER
West Somerville girl who won fame in a Follies show as "The Buttery Girl" under the name of Madeline LaBarre introduced alleged love letters of Philip Shaw, New York banker, at the trial of her $100,000 suit for alleged breach of promise. The letters protested the girl's devotion to the show girl, who refused to accept Shaw's offer of marriage at the opening of the trial.

TRIED TO CHANGE SEATS, DROWNED
Woburn, N. H., June 24.—Homer Young, twenty, of Woburn, was drowned when he attempted to change seats with a girl companion on Lake Winnepesaukee. The girl, Miss Isabel Horne, nineteen, also of Woburn, clung to the overturned canoe and was saved. Police of towns surrounding the lake were dragging today for Young's body.

MRS. SHAW WILL BACK EX-MATE

Banker's Former Wife to Testify for Him in Madeline Dever's Suit

New York, June 24.—The fact that Mrs. Elinor Shaw, who was divorced from Philip M. Shaw in Rhode Island several months ago after discontinuing a suit for divorce against him in this State, will testify for him in the breach of promise suit brought by Madeline Dever, of Somerville, Mass., was revealed today by Herbert C. Smith, attorney for Shaw, during the cross-examination of Miss Dever.

Miss Dever had testified that she had been much disturbed by a telephone message from a woman not known to her in the rooms at the Hotel Westward, at a time when she thought Shaw was single.

Mr. Smith asked whether Mrs. Shaw had not called her up before then and told her that her suit for divorce was coming to Mrs. Shaw's home. Miss Dever denied that she had ever received such a telephone message.

"For your own information," said Mr. Smith, "Mrs. Shaw will testify at this trial. If she testifies that such a conversation took place before the date in June, 1923, of the conversation you have testified to."

Brisbane's Story of the Convention

Madison Square Garden, N. Y., June 24.—Half past ten, nobody in the Garden but reporters, ushers, a few drowsy spectators scattered in the galleries, nearly all determined women, bound to see everything, and many flags. If big flags and little flags, separate flags and bunched flags, can save the country, the country is saved.

Every candidate and everybody else believes that the flag is his flag, that he has it patented, and that all on the other side of the fence are the flag of his enemies.

The flag flags say: "You are trying to dry up sacred flag through a whiskey barrel."

The wets say: "That dear old flag has always been accustomed to light wines and beer and can't float up to a country that lacks them."

Thomas Jefferson understood this nation and he was for beer and light wine, plenty of both.

Then, of course, you have the Ku Klux Klans, who say they come along just in time to save the flag from being torn down, stamped on, or pulled into some other vulgar such as a "bright green or green red."

The great Ku Klux Wizard, Evans himself, is somewhere around here. His friends say he might be torn to pieces if he appeared in public. When you hear that you begin to ask whether he is well drilled.

But just then comes along James H. Doolittle, who cuts the power gas in the Senate. He has won and secured his position on the flag from Continued on Page 6, Column 6.

HARRISON ATTACKS SCANDALS

Savagely Lambastes Republicans and Dwells Again and Again on Corruption

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES, International News Service Staff Correspondent.
Madison Square Garden, New York, June 24.—Assailing the Harding-Coolidge Administration with a savagery and ferocity seldom equalled in keynote addresses, Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, opened the Democratic National Convention here today by sounding a party tocsin that, he warned, will ring from Democratic lips throughout the campaign.

BALK PLOT TO WRECK TRAIN

An attempt to wreck a Boston-bound Narragansett train was revealed today. A heavy sack of granite was thrown in the path of the locomotive as it entered the Wood Island station, East Boston.

Engineer George Pratt stopped his train within 100 yards of the spot where two men, standing beside the tracks in the semicircular platform, the clock, weighing over 150 pounds.

The speed of the train prevented descent, the heavy mass of stone landing on the rear end of the coal tender from which it bounced over the platform of the first car, a smoker.

Railroad officials said other attempts to wreck trains have been made recently, pieces of metal having been placed on the rails near the Wood Island station.

RED SOX BRACE FOR BIG JUMP

By Nick Flatley.
With a Quinn, Ferguson and Klumke, and a possibility that George Morris will see service, the Red Sox will make a desperate effort to get back in the running in Boston diamond league fight today.

Joe Harris is expected back in action in the near future and his presence on the line will add pep and vigor both to the defense and offense of the club.

Joe Harris wrapped his knee in New York, but, according to the latest reports, the ailing member is fast coming into shape, and may face the big Southern League pitcher Continued on Page 13, Col. 1.

WIFE TO STAND BY BANKER

WILL TESTIFY FOR HIM IN $100,000 LOVE SUIT

"I will," answered the witness.

"Miss Dever, who was known as 'Madame Lorraine' when in 1911 she appeared in the Folies on Broadway for Marilyn Miller, now Mrs. Jack Palfrey, said that her husband, after having treated her with respect and consideration as a gentleman."

"She said Shaw gave her no offense up to the time of her estrangement, which was caused, according to her testimony, by his brother, Fred Shaw. She testified, however, that she had been greatly worried by his failure to explain the conversation of June 1915."

"A woman was at the other end of the wire," said Miss Dever, referring to the telephone conversation, "and she wanted to speak to Mr. Shaw. I said 'He is not here; he is at his office; who are you?' then he answered, 'That is none of your business.'"

SHE WAS WORRIED.

"I told my mother about it and we wept up Mr. Shaw at his office. Then we went downtown to see him. It seemed to me as if the woman must have had some claim on him, and I was his affianced wife. He assured us that everything was all right, but the explanation he gave me was not satisfactory and I continued to be worried during the month that followed."

"If that is all that happened, why should you be so much worried," demanded Mr. Smyth.

"Well, if when you were affianced to Mrs. Smyth you received a telephone call from some man who wanted to speak to her, you would have been pretty much worried if she had not given a satisfactory explanation would you?" asked the witness.

"Mr. Smyth laughed."

EQUAL TO TASK.

"If my mind can carry me back that far clearly," he said, "Mrs. Smyth received many telephone messages from others when I was afflicted with her and it never worried me a bit."

"Probably I am more constant and true than you were," partly answered the witness.

"Mr. Smyth bowed slightly. 'Perhaps that is so,' he admitted."

"Mr. Smyth told the witness that he should feel worried during the cross-examination, and would let him know about it; he would be glad to answer or to ask the court to take an adjournment."

"Thank you, Mr. Smyth," said Miss Dever. "I am quite equal to the task."

SHE'S DEMURE, SHAW SMILES.

Miss Dever, who went to court accompanied by her mother and by her attorney, Morris Shale Hirsch, was attired in a black velvet suit, high at the neck, and a black hat, trimmed with black lace. Her chest was not brown hair, which is not bobbed, hung in coils over her shoulders. She was a slight and demure looking figure as she faced her inquirer."

Shaw, head of the banking house that bears his name, sat beside his attorneys at the counsel table, gray haired and conventional looking, with a look of amusement playing about constantly about his lips.

Maughan's Own Story of His Winning Flight

Chicago, June 24.—The log of Lieutenant Russell Maughan's record flight across the United States is:

Left	Arrived	Miles	Time	Av. Speed
New York, 3:00 A. M.	Dayton, 7:05 A. M.	575	4:03	140.40
Dayton, 8:15 A. M.	St. Joseph, 11:52 A. M.	565	3:37	141.00
St. Joseph, 12:37 P. M.	North Platte, 2:24 P. M.	355	1:57	186.80
North Platte, 2:57 P. M.	Cheyenne, 4:15 P. M.	225	1:18	172.80
Cheyenne, 4:54 P. M.	Salt Lake, 6:22 P. M.	385	3:26	170.40
Salt Lake, 8:51 P. M.	San Francisco, 12:25 A. M.	575	3:57	145.20

TOTALS: 2,850 18:20 158.20

(Note—All time reduced to Eastern Standard and distances approximate.)

The total time Lieutenant Maughan took from when he hopped off at New York until he landed at San Francisco was 21 hours and 48 minutes, including 3 hours and 28 minutes taken out at five stops as follows:

Dayton, 1:10; St. Joseph, 1:45; North Platte, 1:23; Cheyenne, 1:39; Salt Lake, 1:31.

Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan, U.S.A., who arrived in San Francisco from Mitchell Flying Field, New York, at 2:24 o'clock last night (1:15 a. m. Boston daylight time) after making the 2,700-mile transcontinental flight in twenty-one hours and forty-nine minutes, rested up today, none the worse for his long and grueling journey. Stops enroute took up three hours and twenty-five minutes, making the actual flying time eighteen hours and twenty-six minutes. The aviator says a great aviator.

In a statement to the press Lieutenant Maughan said:

"I feel fine now, but I did have a hard time with my stomach during the greater part of the trip. When I had been out from Mitchell Field six or seven hours I found I could not hold my breakfast down. My stomach became sensitive from the high speed I was traveling at high altitudes."

"There were plenty of times during my trip when I was very tired, but I always succeeded in righting my machine. I don't know exactly what my average speed was, but I estimated it to be somewhere around 140 miles an hour at times and at other times 160 miles."

BUCKED HEAVY WINDS.

The weather was against me during practically the whole trip and I know that I would have made it in scheduled time under better conditions."

"I had about 150 miles of rain, 100 miles of fog and the rest was hard traveling through low hanging clouds. A heavy wind bucked me during two-thirds of the way. For the rest of the trip there was a heavy cross wind, the most dangerous wind of all."

"Between the plane and myself I was proved the worse performer. There was no serious mechanical difficulty."

COAST TO COAST 'STOLEN' CHILD WAS ONLY ON AUTO RIDE EVERY DAY

Chicago, June 24.—Day and night aerial services scheduled to start July 1, will mark the world's first comprehensive effort to present aviation as a business service, said Colonel Paul Henderson, second assistant postmaster general, outlining plans here.

Next Tuesday, at 6 a. m., Pacific time, one plane will leave San Francisco, and at 10 a. m., Eastern time, will leave New York on the coast-to-coast route of the transcontinental air mail. The scheduled time westbound is 34 hours 45 minutes and eastbound 32 hours 45 minutes.

More than half the distance will be illuminated for night flying. The night flight area is divided into three sections: Cleveland to Chicago, Chicago to Cheyenne, and Cheyenne to Rock Springs, Wyo. Only the center section will be lighted during the summer.

As the days shorten electric and arc lights will take the place of the reflecting sun on the east and west wings, until with the coming of the daylight hours only the Sierras in the West and Alleghenies in the east.

The line has been divided into three postal zones, New York-Chicago-Cheyenne, and Cheyenne-Rock Springs, with rates of eight cents per ounce or fraction for each zone and a third for the last zone.

Letters may be mailed anywhere to be forwarded to the nearest air mail station point. Air mail postage will suffice even if correspondents start and end off the air mail line.

Tricolored red, white and blue lettering of the special service. Others are being installed in important offices of the route where arrangements have been made for quick transmission of mail to junction points for transfer to airplanes.

LA HUERTA'S BROTHER KILLED IN BATTLE

Mexico City, June 24.—General Alfonso de La Huerta, brother of the chief, has been killed in battle according to reports received by Senator Cristobal Castaneda. General de La Huerta attempted to capture a column, a small city in Chihuahua, but was killed during a battle which lasted four hours. The rebels were completely dispersed.

cities for bathing, is especially undermined by the Park Department. On Sunday, when a record crowd sought relief from the heat at L street, at times there were only three men on duty at the lockers to handle the thousands of bathers."

"Men waited for an hour in several instances for attendants to lock up their clothes. So great was the congestion at one time that John McLean, patrolman assigned to the men's bath house at L street, took boys and swam at the risk of helping awaiting bathers get into the water."

"Life guards, sparingly enough assigned, were called on to help handle the thousands of bathers. A year ago the same unimproved condition existed, but until this year, said Allen Greenough of Torrey street, beachmaster, was devoted to an improved beach, and protests prompted the Park Department, were extra men put on duty."

"By sheer chance a similar tragedy was narrowly averted again this year. At Columbus Park beach, at the head of the bay, a policeman, Charles C. Brown, was hurried from the station house to stop some small boys from playing ball on the beach when he noticed a bundle floating in the water. He waded in to investigate and found three-year-old John Thornton of 315 North Ninth street, nearly drowned."

ADMIT BAD CONDITIONS.

Had Patrolman Brown failed to notice the bundle, the Thornton boy might have drowned. This sort of beach again this year is without life guards."

Conditions at L street were paralleled at the new bath house at Columbus Park. Nowhere near enough attendants were on duty, and lines of bathers formed waiting for a chance to get into the water."

Park Department officials admitted that conditions were bad. Superintendent Lane, in charge of beaches, was at L street. He escaped a half hour wait for a locker by getting a key himself and putting his clothes in a locker in which were clothes of his friends."

"Don't blame us for the conditions here," he said. "We sent in a requisition for men to the Civil Service Commission, and they sent us only 20 men for the summer."

But emergency men could have been put on duty. When things were at their worst Sunday, Superintendent Donovan of the L street bath saw a former life guard at the beach and pressed him into service on the lockers."

While Greater Boston tried for relief at the crowded beaches, the heat took toll of one life. Norton E. Shanty, 38 years old, of Dorchester, Chelsea, collapsed at work on the farm of Joseph Shurtleff in the river. He was dead before he reached home."

MORE HOT WEATHER.

The weather promises more of the same variety of hot weather that the Hub has experienced during the last two or three days."

According to the Boston weather bureau the people in this section have gotten so used to cold weather that when normal summer weather comes along, everyone gets excited and thinks the mercury is about to pop out the top of the thermometer."

The highest official temperature in the past twenty-four hours was 93 degrees, recorded at 2 p. m. Monday. The weather forecast says the temperature will be about the same today. Also tomorrow and the next day."

A low pressure area, sweeping westward, was expected to bring showers and a cooler temperature but at the last minute, the low pressure area shifted north and early today it passed out to sea along the St. Lawrence river."

Boston did get a few drops of rain and some overcast skies—just the kind that Boston needs. But in the meantime the concessionaires at Faneuil and Nantasket beaches and other nearby summer resorts have stopped walking on their own feet. They are taking up with them and the usual summer crowds are beginning to get the beach people out of their nearby watering places of an evening."

"No disturbance of any kind in sight," is the latest report of the weatherman.

Betty Alden Predicts Gay Season for Smart Set of Bar Harbor Colony

By BETTY ALDEN

BAR HARBOR is going to be gayest than ever this year, for yacht enthusiasts. If all the plans are carried through, the Maine resort will be a whirl of entertainments and boating events. It has been years, fourteen, to be precise, since the New York Yacht Club dropped its final anchor at Bar Harbor on its annual cruise. Early next month, the official trip of the fleet begins. At Cape Cod the Eastern Yacht Club joins the New York boats and the combined fleets will head for Maine. All July will probably be a series of social events for the yacht clubs.

Then along in August, the Maritime Tennis Tournament, started in 1912, will hold the stage for the social set. There is an air to this tennis tournament that brings a distinction and almost a thrill. The British Embassy keeps a cruise anchored in Freshman's Bay at this time, and the United States Navy Department usually has a ship or two of our own in port at the same time. Visiting officers bring their impressive golf build touch to the diversion, the luncheon, the tea and the dances, and all Bar Harbor feels that it is somewhat of a gala time.

BOSTON is to be well represented for all the boating and tennis events in the Maine society colony. Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Thordike arrived at Bar Harbor last Thursday with their charming daughter, Isabel G. Thordike, and Winifred. They will be at "Rezeaux" on Prospect avenue.

TUESDAY there is Mrs. Loring P. Reed and her family from New York, who are at "The Boulder." Mrs. Reed is a daughter of Bishop and Mrs. William Lawrence of Boston who, with other members of the family, are going to occupy "Inglenook" again this summer.

MISS KATHERINE GRAY, daughter of the James Cunningham Gray, is an expert sailor. Down at Marblehead Neck, the Grays have their summer home, "Rocky Beach," and Miss Gray has the wonderful water near the Neck for her sport.

MISS KATHERINE GRAY

near the Neck for her sport.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, West Virginia, is as much of a rendezvous as ever. Prolonging horseback promises to be in voice again this season as a leading sport place—drawn vehicles have been prominent at the Springs since last year.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Christie are in the Virginia resort just now for an indefinite stay.

IN Adams, at four o'clock this afternoon, Lydia French Plunkett, daughter of Mrs. Edward W. Chapman of New York, and the late William Caldwell Plunkett, is to marry Lester Villor Decker. If the weather permits, the bridegroom will march across the lawn from the bride's home to the church. The bride is to wear her mother's wedding gown, on the anniversary of her parents' wedding day.

On the same day Mrs. James Jackson went to the Lee cottage on West street, Bar Harbor.

REV. FR. KENNEY IS MUCH IMPROVED

The Rev. Francis J. Kenney, pastor of St. Monica's Church, Dorchester avenue, South Boston, who collapsed while officiating at mass on Sunday, was believed to be out of danger today. At the parochial rectory today it was declared that the pastor had passed a comfortable night and appeared much improved.

HE IS CLEW IN CAMBRIDGE TRAGEDY

Police Seek the Owner of Battered Headgear in Murder of Leo Kelley

A battered and bloodstained straw hat, a revolver and the stories of a young girl and her obvious male friend furnish clues which the police believe will lead to the capture of the slayer of Leo Kelley, 19-year-old East Cambridge youth.

Kelley was shot down by one of a party of five unidentified men who passed from a taxi in front of Hart Hall in East Cambridge. The slaying of Kelley is believed to have been the result of mistaken identity.

A short time earlier, Miss Mae Coughlin, a pretty East Cambridge girl who was attending a wedding in Hart Hall, was insulted by a male guest at the festivities.

OFFENDER BEATEN.

Miss Coughlin told one of her friends, Joseph Field of No. 34 Thorndike street, East Cambridge. Field was indignant and determined the insult should be wiped out. That determination indirectly led to the murder of Kelley.

Field waited outside the hall until the man who assaulted Miss Coughlin appeared. The man and two friends entered a taxi cab, and according to his own admission, beat up the offender.

"I asked him to apologize as he came from the hall," said Field. But instead, he called me some vile names and jumped into the taxi cab. I jumped into the cab and beat him up and killed him.

PROFESSIONAL GUNMAN.

"I crushed his straw hat and kicked him in the chin. After I had beaten him to a standstill the driver of the cab ordered me out of the vehicle and I left. The man I beat up and his friends sped away."

Police believe that a professional gunman was sought. A few minutes later, a taxi cab drew up in front of the hall. There were a crowd of men standing about. The five men jumped from the cab and one of them drew a revolver, firing three shots.

Kelley, who lived at No. 127 Spring street, East Cambridge, was shot just above the heart and died later at Cambridge City Hospital. It is believed the third gunman mistook Field for Field.

FIRE FIGHTERS INVADEN H.B. FOR 3 DAYS

An one-ambulance fire trying to get a start in life will have a tough time of it if it gets Mechanical Building during today, tomorrow and Thursday.

Fire fighters from New England cities and towns gathered in Mechanics Hall today for the second annual convention of the New England Association of Fire Chiefs.

The organization was formed somewhat over a year ago. The first convention was held in Bridgeport.

A reception committee, headed by Fire Commissioner Theodore A. Gynn and Chief John O. Tuber, received the firemen today. The visitors included not only fire chiefs, but fire protection and prevention engineers, insurance officials and others interested in fire fighting.

James J. Johnson, Park A. Hurley, including, of course, the indefatigable "sparkies." The visitors number more than 150.

In connection with the convention, a mammoth exhibition of fire apparatus, appliances and equipment is being held in Machinery Hall, adjoining.

Today's program for the convention included addresses and reading of papers by Mayor Curley, Commissioner Gynn, Chief Tuber, Chief Charles P. Moran of the Hood River, Portland, Ore., Chief John O. Tuber of Brookline, T. Alfred Fleming, Chief of Fire Underwriters, Chief Moran, Hartford, and Fire Engineer Shepley of New York.

Officers of the new organization include: Chief John C. Moran, Hartford, president; Chief Patrick J. Hurley, Holyoke, first vice-president; Chief Daniel E. Johnson, Bridgeport, second vice-president; Chief John W. O'Hara, Watertown, secretary-treasurer.

ARIZONA GIRL WINS HONORS

Among the pupils who won special honors today at graduation exercises of the New England Conservatory of Music, was Miss Mary M. Melanson, Miss Margaret C. Mason and Thomas W. Lander.

Highest honors were awarded to Miss Rita M. Bowers of Bismarck, Ark. She is the daughter of Charles W. Bowers, a supervisor of music in the Bismarck public schools. Her father was graduated from the Conservatory in 1922 and was one of the proud guests today as his daughter was handed her diploma.

Miss Bowers was also announced.

Margaret C. Mason, Thomas W. Lander.

As winner of one of the Endicott prize for excellence in composition, she won diploma as a student of the "cello and allied studies." Miss Mason was awarded honors with distinction for her piano studies and also an Endicott prize, her second and since entering.

HERESS WIFE IN UNUSUAL BATTLE

Husband Wrenches Child From Her Arms After Battering Rani Forces Hotel Door

Rome, June 24.—Pursued by a squadron of hydroplanes, captured on the high seas, stored in a lavishly hotel room, her child wrenched from her arms.

These are the high lights in the most recent adventure of the former Loredana Beldieri, whose sensational effort to regain custody of her little daughter was foiled by equally spectacular tactics of her husband, General Pier Ruggero Piccio, Italian ace of aces.

Details of the thriller were aired today for the first time when the American bureau sent cables back to Rome. Though temperately the loser in her gamble of mother love, she is still hopelessly defiant.

After the failure of the general and his hydroplane squadron in pursuit of the fugitive boat, and his final seizure by other means, General Piccio, the Countess and her child were taken to the island port of Taormina.

General Piccio was wirelessly and he flew over from the mainland.

He found the Countess barricaded with her child in a hotel room, to which her captives had permitted her to retire. She declined to comply with his command to open the door, crying:

"Never back! I hate you!"

General Piccio flung his body against the barricade but without success. He summoned police. He had a dozen firing themselves against the stout door without results, then a heavy pole was used as a battering ram. The door gave way with a crash. A doorman was projected into the room.

The Countess, cowering in a far corner, was suddenly clasped by her little daughter, clung to her with, the little girl clung to her mother. There was a tug of war, with a bit of foul language on the rope.

But the mother, apparently fearing the child might be injured, released her hold and the General backed. The mother, leaving the screaming child victoriously in his arms.

BRYAN EXPECTS COMPLETE HARMONY ON RELIGIOUS PLANK

DELEGATES ALL AGREE

Sees Different Factions Coming Together to Unite on Inoffensive Wording

By W. J. BRYAN.
New York, June 24.—The platform talk continues with a tendency to harmonize extreme views in favor of moderate expressions—not compromises, but agreement on fundamentals.

Take for instance the religious plank; there never was a better illustration of the many ways of expressing a thought. The thought to be expressed is the constitutional right to worship God according to the dictates of one's conscience, in other words, that religion is a matter of the soul, inseparable from civil liberty. When the delegates began to reach New York—the more enthusiastic ones first—the air was full of rumors about a fight that was to take place. To read the scare-heads, one would suppose that there were no economic issues or political questions, but only one over-shadowing religious question.

PROPOSED PLANK

"The tumult and the shouting ceased," and most of different religious faiths are elevated together, considering calmly and dispassionately how best to say what all desire to say without unnecessary offense to anyone.

One of the planks proposed is as follows:

"The Constitution of the United States guarantees to every citizen the right of civil and religious liberty. The Democratic party has always been the exponent of political and religious freedom, and it reaffirms its obligation and reaffirms its devotion to these fundamental principles of the Constitution."

I wonder if the reader can guess from what Democratic document these words were taken? They would have puzzled me to locate the platform in which this declaration in behalf of religious freedom appeared. It is a part of the Democratic platform adopted at Chicago in 1896.

Col. P. H. Callahan of Louisville, Ky., a prominent business man of the South and a Catholic high in the councils of the committee on religious prejudice, brought the plank to my attention.

SUITED MILLIONS

This plank was intended to deal with a situation much like the present, but it did not represent extreme views, but it satisfied both sides of the controversy. I ran for President on that platform and polled a million more votes than the Democratic party ever polled before. The vote of that year stood as the record for 20 years. It was not until 1916 that the vote cast for a Democratic candidate for President exceeded the Democratic vote polled in 1896.

Many Democrats, Catholic and Protestant, have expressed satisfaction with this plank, which has the merit of having been tried out in a Presidential campaign. Whether this plank or a similar one is adopted, it is quite certain that a plank will be agreed upon in the committee and adopted by the convention without opposition.

FARMERS' TRAGEDY

The banking question will receive attention. The deflation of the currency was a tragedy in the economic history of the country. It has stirred the farmers to demand representation on the Federal Reserve Board.

Their appeal was so stern and their position so pathetic that their demand was granted, despite the personal protest of Sen. Mellon.

Think of a Secretary of the Treasury appearing personally before a committee of Congress and objecting to the farmers having one out of seven of a board that exercises arbitrary power over their property, as well as their incomes.

The wage earners, who constitute the next largest group of our citizens, ought also to be represented on this board, and the committee will be wise if it recognizes this great issue by giving it representation on the Federal Reserve Board.

No one could deny that there are wage earners entirely competent to occupy such a position. W. S. Stone, for instance, head of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, has proven his financial ability by managing the great bank which he has established for working men.

The Democratic convention has hardly evened to these fundamental principles of the currency law, enacted for the emancipation of the people, can make their endorsement more galling. If Wall Street is permitted to control the Federal Reserve Bank, there is much criticism of the manner in which this bank has been manipulated.

The large profits earned by some of the reserve banks are hardly to be defended; they are cited as proof that the policy of the bank has been to protect the private banks from competition by giving borrowers as low a rate as possible.

BETTING IS AGAINST MADDOO AND SMITH

New York, June 24.—Betting on the Democratic convention grew more active until $150,000 had been made up on the proposition that the odds against both Maddoo and Smith combined. Smith backers, while still taking 2 to 1 in some instances, were for the most part demanding 2 1/2 to 1. Maddoo went from 2 1/2 to 1 to 3 to 1.

John W. Davis and Senator Bryan were 4 to 1, Senator Glass to 5 to 1, Senator Underwood and Gov. S. D. 5 to 1. There was even a bet that William J. Bryan, whom one supporter regarded a 10 to 1 shot.

MA'DOO MOVE SURPRISES HAPGOOD

Reveals Inside of Smith's Campaign Backed by Tammany Hall

By NORMAN HAPGOOD, Editor of Hearst's International Magazine.

New York, June 24 (Universal)—Nobody can tell from this article whom I want the Democrats to nominate. Nobody can tell what pleases I want in the platform. If I am not highly pleased by the result I shall vote for La Follette. The rest, for the present, is a secret between me and my shadow.

This first article is simply to throw light on certain candidates, as I know them and their beliefs. The one I have in mind is not a long and a most intimate one. I will not say it is a secret, but it is a secret between me and my shadow.

Norman Hapgood is a well-known writer and editor. He is a Democrat and a supporter of the League of Nations.

An outstanding quality in Maddoo is impulse. He wanted to come out against the Klan by name, many would agree. He wanted to come out in so many words in favor of entering the League.

It was the advice of some of his closest friends, and his own final judgment, something over his head, that he should not say that, but to limit his expressions on the League of Nations.

WHY HE YIELDED.

It was pointed out to him that the Klan as such is not before the people at this national election. He yielded to the argument.

Next I take up Hapgood. This is a man who has given up his business to go into politics. He is a Democrat and a supporter of the League of Nations. He is a man who has given up his business to go into politics. He is a Democrat and a supporter of the League of Nations.

LA FOLLETTE'S DANGER.

He said that whereas two months ago he had been a supporter of the League of Nations, he was now a supporter of the League of Nations. He was now a supporter of the League of Nations.

When they apply that the chances are against the election of the Democratic nominee, they are taking this account what Robert La Follette's danger is going to do to the Republican party, not only in the Northwest, where he will carry states, but in plenty of middle Western and Eastern industrial states, which he will pick up a big vote.

My friend laughed. "You are asking me much," he said. "You are asking them to carry two ideas in their heads at once. They are not so highly trained as that. They never give a thought to La Follette."

Just now my only advice to the Democrats is not to leave La Follette out of their deliberations.

CAN MAKE FIVE FIVE.

There are two kinds of campaigns he can wage. If he is displeased with the Democratic ticket, and platform as it is with the Republican ticket and platform for one place at them both with impartiality, intent only on strengthening the group which he leads in the Senate and the House.

If he thinks the Democratic showing, on the other hand, is fairly liberal, he can concentrate his work in the Senate and make some very fine things.

Boy Pages 'Coolidge' Scares Bay Staters

By JO SWERLING

New York, June 24.—Messengers are running to and fro, favorite sons are running for President and Vice-President, perspiration is running and a few "juints" (despite the recent terrific paddocking) are running wide open.

In Cleveland the candidates and their cohorts kept cool with Coolidge, to the bitter end. Here the burning question is: "Can they stay so long?"

The New England situation is much complicated by the absence of the Massachusetts delegation to the Boston American readers of the Massachusetts delegation to the Whittier Club of Winchester, of whom the Boston American readers may have heard in the past.

Following Mr. Tuck's impassioned denunciation on lower than the best coming over in favor of Colonel William A. Gorton for Vice-President, he now spends all his waking hours buttonholing bellhops, street cleaners, traffic cops and all and sundry who care to give ear, and telling them in the strictest confidence to keep an eye on Gorton for Al Smith.

The sweating delegate, buttonholing by Turk and informed that Gorton was the white horse for Al Smith.

The only one of the leaders of the Rhode Island filibuster here is Mrs. Mabel Ahearn O'Neill, the first woman to be elected to the General Assembly.

Mrs. O'Neill was the loyal one who tasted Toppin's food during the election and episode to see whether or not it was poisoned. Here, in the midst of bustling millions, she is the only member of the Rhode Island delegation who seems to be unfettered by the rush.

"It's quiet and peaceful after the State House row in Providence," Mrs. O'Neill replied.

GIVEN 25 CENTS WIFE OF RICH IN 5 YEARS, BANKER ADMITS SAYS WIFE FLOGGING
But Now Artist Tartous Must Pay $75 a Week by Order of Court
Miami, Fla., June 24.—Countess Claudia Windsor de Chantouet had twenty-five cents lavished on her by her French artist husband during five years of married life, but now she will get $75 a week and also counsel fees, pending disposition of his divorce proceedings.
The legal victory over Pierre Tartous, the artist, was gained by the wife through a decree of Circuit Judge A. J. Roe. The countess is continuing his divorce action.
In her testimony Countess Claudia declared that Tartous's sole contribution to her support in five years was a "twosh" piece he handed her for his last day in New York.

Lost Temper, She Says, When Mrs. Bonnotte Refused to Give Up Husband
New Orleans, June 24.—Mrs. John W. Ball, wife of a wealthy lumberman and banker of Alexandria, La., has admitted that she, her daughter, Mrs. Amelia Ball Jordan, and a friend, Mrs. Leslie Hatchette, on April 25, flogged Mrs. Lillian Bonnotte, beautiful young matron of that place, save the item today.
Mrs. Bonnotte last week filed a suit for $25,000 damages against the three. Simultaneously it was disclosed that the Grand Jury had returned secret indictments against the women and that previously Mrs. Ball and her daughter had been indicted for an alleged attempt to shoot Ball, who left Alexandria several weeks ago.
The admission of Mrs. Ball, according to the item, was made in the presence of her counsel. Mrs. Ball said that, goaded by the unfaithfulness of the man to whom she has been married thirty-five years and the refusal of the other woman to relinquish her hold on her husband after one break and a reconciliation, her temper had run away with her, and she had taken the punishment into her own hands.

MATCHES IN POCKET SET CLOTHES AFIRE
James E. McNally of the Michael J. Perkins Post, South Boston, is old enough to buy cigarettes but too young to stop carrying matches. A pocketful of them nearly ruined his new suit and himself.
McNally was seated in a Broadway theatre, watching a motion picture. A woman sitting next to him began to sniff the air. Then she looked at McNally. Smoke was pouring from his pocket. When she informed the veteran of his condition, he made a dash for the door. Eddie Cunningham, his buddy, emptied a tin bucket on him and the flames were quenched.

DOWN from CANADA came tales of a wonderful beverage

How Canada's famous old ginger ale was brought to this country and adopted by New York's most exclusive clubs, restaurants and hotels. Now sold in this city.

FOR years and years, visitors to Canada have come back with tales of a wonderful ginger ale. They described its exquisite flavor—they told of drinking it in the Houses of Parliament in Ottawa, in the residence of the Governor-General, and in the Royal Canadian Yacht Club.

Friends would listen and smack their lips and ask if there wasn't some way to purchase it in this country. And the answer was always "No."

Then in 1921 the Canadian owners were induced to open a selling agency in this country and "Canada Dry," for the first time, was officially brought to the United States.

A carload was sold the very first week, without a line of printed advertising, and in two short years "Canada Dry" became the accepted ginger ale for smart functions in the most exclusive clubs, hotels and restaurants in New York.

As a matter of fact, the demand grew so rapidly that a separate plant was soon made necessary in this country—one of the most impressive tributes to quality in the history of American business. The reason for the remarkable success of "Canada Dry" is simply that it is

A real ginger ale

This is an important point to remember. The dark, brownish color of the ordinary ginger ale is no indication of the quality. That strong, burning, biting taste of the ordinary ginger ale is due largely to the excessive use of capsicum, or red pepper, which is often substituted for the genuine Jamaica ginger.

Because it is real ginger ale, and is made from real Jamaica ginger and other absolutely pure ingredients, "Canada Dry" blends delightfully with other beverages—it will not bite the tongue or burn the lips—it has none of that flat, syrupy flavor—it leaves no "brassy" after-taste or recurring "back kick," as some people call it—it is friendly to the stomach!

"Canada Dry" has been served for years in the leading hospitals in Canada because of its purity and quality. It is one of the very, very few ginger ales that physicians recommend with absolute confidence.

A truly wonderful flavor!

The minute you break the golden seal of the beautiful bottle and pour a bit of "Canada Dry" slowly down the side of the thin-edged glass, as the connoisseur would pour a glass of fine old wine, you will know that here, at last, is real ginger ale.

Hold it to the light. See how clear it is! How it gleams and sparkles! The life and vitality of it! The pale, "dry" champagne color.

And then—taste it! Here is a revelation in ginger ale quality—a delicate, alluring "dry" flavor that intrigues your taste—a flavor unlike that of any other ginger ale you have ever tasted!

For "Canada Dry" is made from a formula known to only three men! This formula took fifteen years to perfect—it is handed down from father to son—it is one of the most carefully guarded commercial secrets in the world!

Truly it has been said that until you try "Canada Dry" you have no idea how good ginger ale ought to be. It is so different from the ordinary ginger ale that it might almost be called by another name.

READY TO GIVE UP LABOR POSITIONS

Instead of a business agent and secretary, many firms are now ready to give up their labor positions. This is because of the high cost of labor and the fact that many firms are not able to pay the high wages that are demanded by the workers. Democrats' Opportunity Big if They Return to the Faith

The Democratic Convention, in framing the platform on which to go before the people, has an unexampled opportunity. It can point to a record of scandal which has attached itself to the last Republican administration without parallel in our political history.

The Democrats can call attention to the extraordinary expenditure of over eight million dollars by the Republicans in securing their national ticket in 1920. The Republican administration was born in a barrel of money, and never strayed far from its birthplace.

The Democratic Party will recall the outrageous seating of Senator Newberry of Michigan by his colleagues, after it had been proven that he spent $250,000 for his election in Michigan, and after he had been convicted of corrupt practices in a United States District Court at Grand Rapids.

The Democratic Party can denounce the criminal negligence and corruption that surrounded the alienation of the nation's treasurable oil reserves by Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall and Secretary of the Navy Edwin Denby.

The Democratic Party can point to the criminal waste and mismanagement in the Veterans' Bureau by Colonel Charles R. Forbes, who, though given four hundred and fifty million dollars annually to care for the veterans, squandered the money and left them unprotected.

The Democratic Party can recall to the people the deplorable revelations in the Department of Justice.

It will not be difficult for the Democratic platform makers to frame a devastating indictment against the Republican administration which seeks to be continued in power at Washington.

And yet no political party can be elected merely by calling the other party names, no matter how true the names are. The important thing is for the Democrats in their platform to tell what they will do.

The party must free itself from every taint of booze or boodle, or nothing that it says against those twin evils will be of any avail.

It must return to the faith of every great leader of the Democratic Party, including Woodrow Wilson during the first six years of his Presidency. It must reaffirm the independence of the United States and forever internationalism in every form.

It must shun the internationalism of the intriguing diplomats, or of the international bankers, as sincerely as it shuns the internationalism of the Communists.

When East Meets West

A Good Cartoon by a Chinese Gentleman

THE WEST, AMERICA, FLYING OVER THE EAST, CHINA

The name signed to this cartoon is that of a young Chinese gentleman, residing, studying and working in the United States. It shows the Chinese rivermen, with their craft of the primitive type, watching the American flyer high in the air on their "hop" across the Pacific Ocean from the United States to China. You remember what it meant to people in this country when they heard the first noise coming from the sky, and looked up to see machines whirling and darting overhead.

The Chinese artist, whose picture we gladly print, emphasizes the point that knowledge, flying across the sea and around the world, will become the possession of the WHOLE world.

Before many years shall have passed, the Chinese, courageous, enduring, patient and intelligent, will replace their strange boats with machines that fly through the air.

The Chinese men and women, that now bear heavy burdens on their backs up the hills, and that have few good roads, will use high power engines instead of their muscles, and will have the air above them for their highway.

Then NEW world problems will come, new conflicts, perhaps, new struggles between East and West.

May JUSTICE direct and control those struggles. And may science find a better way to settle the world's problems than the way of war and destruction.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

HE who comes to "love and ride away," these days is sure to find that his will-power has been punctured and his ear stilled while he hung around.

When a man marries he thinks he wants a piece of alabaster to admire and worship, but what he really wants is a piece of clay.

When a man says: "You know how much I love you?" but doesn't add that he loves her enough to marry her, a girl is filled with all the latter expectation of the silent vision project administers "line," but avoids signing on the dotted line.

To a man a woman is like a violin not only because she "will out" or "move off" does make any serious attempt to catch or hold her.

In a man's mind a woman is associated with seductive Oriental perfumes, and a wife with the pleasant aroma of frying bacon or broiling steak—but somehow he never gets a pretty trained nurse confused with carnal intent.

"Leap year" and "Lovers' Leap" are equally obsolete terms. Men don't leap into love any more; they merely crawl into it, skid into it, or have to be chloroformed and dragged into it.

A modern wife doesn't worry about the girls who flirt with her husband—the waste until he meets one who "sympathizes" with him.

The fortune that some men show in bidding their wives good-bye for the Summer is equalled only by the bravery with which they bear up—and take on weight—during the separation.

The man who is pure in one woman's hands is often just plain mean in another's.

The lock in any man's heart can usually be gripped open with a loud heart.

Editor Helpling Hand: I am the mother of eight children, and I just came home from the hospital. My husband has not much work, as he met with a bad accident a year ago and is very lame. My children's ages are—boys, fifteen, twelve, seven, three, and the baby, two weeks old. The girls are sixteen, thirteen, fifteen months. If any kind reader of your paper had anything in infants' wear or for boys, I would be very thankful. It is awful hard for us to get along. I hope I will hear from some one, as I get so discouraged the way things are. MRS. D. N.

For Boy and Woman Editor Helpling Hand: I have a box of clothing for a boy between one and two years old. Also a dress and coat for a woman, size 34-40. If possible I should like these to go to one family and would prefer to have them call. MRS. J. R. P. Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. M. M. who has a little boy just past one year old.

Needs Clothes Badly Editor Helpling Hand: Last year I wrote your column and I hope I isn't too much to ask help again. If any of the readers have any clothing for a boy six and a girl five I should be very grateful. Also anything for myself would be welcome. I wear sixteen-year-old clothes and a 2 1/2 or 3 shoe. The boy takes a

2 1/2 and the girl a 7 1/2 shoe. I will be grateful for anything, as I only make twelve dollars a week and cannot spare any money for clothing. H. M. G.

Very Poor Family in Need Editor Helpling Hand: I am writing to tell you of a very poor family. The father was laid off early in the winter and has been unable to get any other work since. They were unable to pay their rent and had to vacate, so they were obliged to go to his wife's mother, who is a widow and very poor. Now they are in need of clothing of all kinds. The children are a girl of nine, a boy eight, a girl four and a boy 2 1/2. The mother wears a shoe size 5 or 6 and dress 40 or 42. They can't go to Sunday school, as they have no clothes to wear. The baby has nothing to wear on his head, besides needing other clothes. He that helps the poor lendseth to the Lord. If you send the things to me I will fix over and deliver them. MRS. O. W. S.

Thanks for Reading Matter Editor Helpling Hand: Our thanks are due the following kind-hearted people who have offered reading matter to the hal who is working alone in the column: Miss N. M. T. WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

History is the chart and compass for national endeavor.

Music is the universal tongue.

It is the duty of the shepherd to cheer the sheep, not to fly them.

He who has the truth at his heart need never fear the want of persuasion on his tongue.

He grieves more than he needs who grieves before he needs.

Suspicion is the poison of true friendship.

Merit begets confidence. Confidence begets enthusiasm, and enthusiasm can conquer the world.

It is no easy matter to persuade people to have confidence.

Nature gives hands still, not minds still. They ever go up or go down.

Imagination rules the world.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON OTHERING YOURSELF

By DR. FRANK CRANE

JOHN M. SIDALL, who edited the American Magazine, was a success.

He built up the circulation of his publication to an amazing figure, even in these days of big figures.

And he did it by having and hanging on to one idea, even as a dog hangs on to a bone.

One idea is enough, if it is right. Some men have but one idea and that is wrong.

Siddall's idea was this: "Only one thing interests all human beings always, and that is the human being himself."

In other words, the one most absorbing topic of interest in the world, overshadowing all others, is ME.

That this truth is proved by the admirable rule of William James; that Truth is What Will Work.

This has worked. Siddall made money out of it for his paper.

The curious phase of this, however, is that it is simply The Golden Rule.

That rule, in substance, is "Other Yourself" and succeed, "other" here being a verb, imperative mood.

And that rule, scientifically speaking, amounts to this: "Use your imagination."

So doing, you picture to yourself the mind and feelings of the other fellow, and in proportion as you do this you "get" him and hold and interest him.

We lose our grip on another because we fail to see rightly whether he is straying. Hence we cannot follow.

The Salesman does not "sell" his customer because he cannot become his customer.

The Parent and Teacher fail with the child because they cannot "become as little children."

The Speaker does not interest his audience because he cannot get out of his own mind over into theirs.

For the same kind of reason the Lawyer does not convince his jury, the Novelist his readers, and the newspaper its public.

We mistake when we suppose any truth is true in religion but not elsewhere.

Othering yourself is not only the way to get to heaven; it is the way to sell goods, to get elected, to make your girl love you, to get along with your neighbors, to manage workers and to keep peace in the family.

England and Ireland are in trouble because neither can other itself over to the point of view of the other.

Labor and Capital clash when each indulges in thinking about itself and not trying to understand the other.

The most enlightened selfishness is unselfishness.

I wrote all this once in a fine article (I know it was fine, because I wrote it myself), and sent it to a magazine, and the editor didn't like it because, he said, it was "preaching."

It was. It is. But nothing in the world is so interesting to read as preaching, providing it is to me and not over me, or about the Isle of Patmos or the Armenian Controversy, or something else I care nothing about.

This Golden Rule runs everywhere. Forget your health, and get well. Quit thinking about yourself is the only way to come to think of your yourself.

He that loathes his life shall save it. Of the man that saved more people than any other man it was said: "He saved Others; Himself He could not save."

EVER since the discovery of the existence of almost unlimited energy locked up in the atoms of matter, it has been a dream of inventive minds to find some way in which that energy could be released for human use.
